Email Archiving pilot program

Join the Arcplace pilot program at the Orbit-iEX

Zurich, Tuesday May 16, 2006

Arcplace AG, a new company specialized in digital archiving solutions for the enterprise market, will be presenting its offering to the public for the first time at the Orbit-iEX – at the eStarter booth in Hall 5 / A10.

As part of its launch, Arcplace will offer customers the possibility to sign-up for email archiving pilots. With Email Archiving from Arcplace, enterprises can reduce email server online storage, reduce backup sizes, comply with Swiss regulations and improve end-user productivity and satisfaction by offering them an “unlimited inbox feeling”. Besides the benefits of the solution itself, by signing up for the program at the Orbit-iEX, customers will gain from favourable commercial conditions.

Business needs, government regulations, and legal requirements make it necessary for companies to store and protect data over long periods (10 years and more). Keeping archived data safe and available over months or years and finding ways to manage the costs of storing large amounts of archived information presents unique challenges that go well beyond standard backup and recovery operations.

To help companies tackle these challenges, Arcplace developed advanced archiving solutions based on leading market products, requirements for compliance and industry best practice. Besides Email Archiving, the solutions portfolio of Arcplace also includes File and Document Archiving. In order to analyse company specific archiving requirements and adapt the solutions to the customer’s environment, Arcplace offers a full range of consulting, deployment and operations services.
